Recapping December

- E-mail server upgrade could have gone smoother.

- WebMail went mostly okay except for some typos and misleading instructions.

- Sunset went smoothly with only a couple things we didn’t anticipate.
Recapping December

- Telephone cables require the right hardware.

  (Note: Oxford’s Radio Shack doesn’t keep 5,000 – 6,000 telephone cable ends in inventory.)
Reflections

- Looking back on 2007

- Looking ahead to 2008
Coming in 2008

Rest in peace…

Netscape Browser

Jim Barksdale
— President and CEO of Netscape Communications Corporation from January 1995 until March 1999.

Barksdale was called before Congress several times during hearings about Microsoft and its alleged abuse of its operating system monopoly to dominate the web browser market. At one point he addressed the entire room: "How many of you use Intel-based PCs in this audience, not Macintoshes?" Most people in the room raised their hands. "Of that group who use PCs, how many of you use a PC without Microsoft's operating system?" All of the hands went down. He said to the Senate panel, "Gentlemen, that is a monopoly."
