

JAMES O. EASTLAND COLLECTION
FILE SERIES 3: CONSTITUENT FILES
SUBSERIES: NUT FILES

As with almost any public official, Senator James O. Eastland occasionally received correspondence from individuals who appeared to suffer from mental illnesses that caused paranoia and a compulsion to write at length on a wide array of subjects. Eastland's staff often appended the term "Nut" or "Nut File" to such letters and the folders that contained them.

The single box in this subseries preserves this classification and organizes the correspondence by year with undated material at the end. The archives added correspondence of a similar nature uncovered during processing.
