

James O. Eastland Collection
File Series 4: Legislative
Subseries 10: Internal Security Subcommittee

The Internal Security Act of 1950 authorized the creation of the Special Subcommittee to Investigate the Administration of the Internal Security Act and Other Internal Security Laws. A subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, it was more commonly referred to as the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee (SISS). The purpose of the subcommittee was to study and investigate (1) the administration, operation, and enforcement of the Internal Security Act of 1950 and other laws relating to espionage, sabotage, and the protection of the internal security of the United States and (2) the extent, nature, and effects of subversive activities in the United States “including, but not limited to, espionage, sabotage, and infiltration of persons who are or may be under the domination of the foreign government or organization controlling the world Communist movement or any movement seeking to overthrow the Government of the United States by force and violence.” Similar to the House Un-American Activities Committee in its mission, the Internal Security Subcommittee had the power to subpoena witnesses and documents.

Senator James O. Eastland joined the subcommittee at its inception in 1951 and became chair in 1955. He remained chair until the Senate abolished the subcommittee in 1977. Investigations during the 1950s focused on Soviet activity in the United States; communist subversion in the federal government (particularly in the Department of State and the Department of Defense); U.S. foreign policy in the Far East; and subversion in several industries (defense, telegraph, newspaper, television, radio, and entertainment) and organizations (civil rights groups, labor unions and education); and immigration. By the 1960s and 1970s the scope included illegal drugs, urban and campus riots, Latin America, and Cuba in particular.

The subseries consists of thirty-one boxes. Boxes 1 through 6 hold the administrative files of the subcommittee arranged chronologically by year and subdivided into the following categories: administration, legislation, financial records, press releases, publications, clippings, and personnel.

The subcommittee also maintained ongoing investigative files on subjects, organizations, and individuals. The contents of these files were often accumulated over a period of twenty years or more. Some of the data contained within the files may predate the formation of the committee. Content may include newspaper and journal clippings, intelligence reports from a variety of agencies as well as subcommittee staff, correspondence, staff memoranda, subcommittee correspondence, transcripts of hearings, and published subcommittee hearings and reports. Boxes 7 through 15 contain investigation files on individual people arranged alphabetically. Not all the individuals listed were under investigation. Some could be informants, witnesses, or subjects of queries from others outside the committee. The contents include publicly available information as well as data acquired through investigations. Boxes 15 through 31 hold the investigation files on organizations and specific subjects. These files are arranged alphabetically.

It is important to note that this arrangement has been imposed by the archives. Although some of the material arrived at the repository in preexisting subcommittee files which the archives preserved, many other documents allocated to this subseries were scattered throughout the papers in a disorganized state.

The separate Internal Security Subcommittee Library subseries provides a list of publications held in the library of the subcommittee as well as any documents discovered within these volumes.

Please note that the Center for Legislative Archives at the National Archives and Records Administration is responsible for the official committee records of the U.S. Senate and will maintain a more comprehensive set of the Internal Security Subcommittee's papers than will be found in the Eastland Collection. By law, Congress retains ownership over committee records, and the Modern Political Archives has returned any items in this Eastland Collection subseries identified as official committee records, maintaining photocopies in their place.

Access Restrictions: By Senate rules, committee records are closed for 20 years and investigative records for 50 years. Due to the heavily investigative nature of the Internal Security Subcommittee, the Modern Political Archives will only permit researcher access to all files whose last dated material is older than 50 years. However, researchers will have access to all files labeled "Clippings," "Financial Records," "Legislation," "Press Releases," and "Publications," regardless of age. The Political Papers archivist will review all restricted files once a year in January to transfer documents that have passed the fifty-year mark from "closed" to "open" files of the same name (i.e., in January 2015, researchers will have access to material in those files dated 1964 and earlier). As a consequence of these restrictions, researchers will not have access to many of the boxes in this subseries – only the folders. The access status of each folder in this subseries is identified in the list below. The Modern Political Archives has adopted a conservative approach and applied a 2028 open date for undated documents although the content may not necessarily date from 1977.

The Modern Political Archives identified a number of classified documents within this subseries during processing. Those documents have been removed and sent to the Information Security Oversight Office (ISSO) of the National Archives and Records Administration for declassification review. Their removal is documented within relevant files with a form. When declassified and returned, the Modern Political Archives will replace said items in the appropriate file (ISSO has already returned a number of these documents which will be marked as "declassified").
