

James O. Eastland Collection
File Series 4: Legislative
Subseries 9: Judiciary Committee

U.S. Senator James O. Eastland joined the Judiciary Committee in 1945. He assumed the chairmanship in 1956 and retained leadership until his retirement in 1978. During Eastland's tenure as chair, the jurisdiction of the Committee on the Judiciary as outlined by Senate Rule XXV included the following:

- Judicial proceedings, civil and criminal, generally
- Constitutional amendments
- Federal courts and judges
- Local courts in territories and possessions
- Revision and codification of the statutes of the United States
- National penitentiaries
- Protection of trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies
- Holidays and celebrations
- Bankruptcy, mutiny, espionage, and counterfeiting
- State and territorial boundary lines
- Meetings of Congress, attendance of Members, and their acceptance of incompatible offices
- Civil liberties
- Patents, copyrights, and trademarks
- Patent Office
- Immigration and naturalization
- Apportionment of Representatives
- Measures relating to claims against the United States
- Interstate compacts generally.

Changes to Rule XXV in 1977 transferred jurisdiction over meetings of Congress, attendance of Members, and acceptance of incompatible offices to the Rules and Administration Committee.

Eastland chaired the following Judiciary subcommittees: Civil Rights, FBI Oversight, Internal Security, and Immigration & Naturalization. As chairman of the full committee, Eastland was an ex officio member of all subcommittees and a regular member of the Criminal Laws & Procedures, Separation of Powers, and Constitutional Amendments subcommittees.

The eighteen boxes in this subseries contain minutes, action sheets, correspondence, clippings, legislation, and other records related to the activities of the larger Judiciary Committee and its individual subcommittees. However, due to their size and scope, Internal Security Subcommittee records are located in a separate subseries. Although the files of the Judiciary Committee subseries possess separate folders on subcommittees, researchers should realize that documents related to these subcommittees will be found throughout general Judiciary Committee folders. Finally, immigration case files of the Immigration and Naturalization Subcommittee are located in a separate subseries, although other material related to the Immigration and Naturalization Subcommittee are available in the Judiciary Committee subseries.

Please note that the Center for Legislative Archives at the National Archives and Records Administration is responsible for the official committee records of the U.S. Senate and will maintain a more comprehensive set of papers than will be found in the Eastland Collection. By law, Congress retains ownership over committee records, and the Modern Political Archives has returned any items in this

Eastland Collection subseries identified as official committee records, maintaining photocopies in their place.

Access Restrictions: By Senate rules, committee records are closed for twenty years and investigative records for fifty years. To abide by this rule, the Modern Political Archives will permit researcher access to all files whose last dated material is older than fifty years. Files related to investigations and confirmations will remain closed for fifty years; those not concerned with investigations or confirmations are open. The Political Papers archivist will transfer restricted files that have passed the fifty-year mark to open status once a year in January (i.e., in January 2015, researchers will have access to material in those files dated 1964 and earlier). As a consequence of these restrictions, researchers will not have access to several of the boxes in this subseries – only the folders. The access status of each folder in this subseries is identified in the list below. The Modern Political Archives has adopted a conservative approach and applied a 2028 open date for undated documents, not necessarily because the content dates from 1977.

The Modern Political Archives identified a number of classified documents within this subseries during processing. Those documents have been removed and sent to the Information Security Oversight Office (ISSO) of the National Archives and Records Administration for declassification review. Their removal is documented within relevant files with a form. When declassified and returned, the Modern Political Archives will replace said items in the appropriate file (ISSO has already returned a number of these documents which will be marked as “declassified”).
