ONLY ONE SPACE FOLLOWS A PERIOD

Forget what you may have learned: People who know about these things insist that only one space should follow a period before starting another sentence.

HTML has been doing this by default since it was invented. It treats two or more consecutive spaces as a single space.

Space Invaders

Why you should never, ever use two spaces after a period.

Can I let you in on a secret? Typing two spaces after a period is totally, completely, utterly, and inarguably wrong.

And yet people who use two spaces are everywhere, their ugly error crossing every social boundary of class, education, and taste. * You'd expect, for instance, that anyone savvy enough to read Slate would know the proper rules of typing, but you'd be wrong; every third e-mail I get from readers includes the two-space error. (In editing letters for "Dear Farhad," my occasional tech-advice column, I've removed enough extra spaces to fill my forthcoming volume of melancholy epic poetry, The Emptiness Within.) The public relations profession is similarly ignorant; I've received press releases and correspondence from the biggest companies in the world that are riddled with extra spaces. Some of my best friends are irredeemable two spacers, too, and even my wife has been known to use an unnecessary extra space every now and then (though she points out that she does so only when writing to other two-spacers, just to make them happy).

The promise of home 3-D printing is that you can construct anything you want from the comfort and convenience of your own living room. For a group whose mission is to 3-D print a working pistol from scratch, however, that promise has been revoked.

The screenshot displays the University of Mississippi's Campus Map website. The header features the university's logo and name, a search bar, and navigation links for A-Z INDEX, MYOLEMISS, BLACKBOARD, WEBMAIL, IT HELPDESK, MAP, and DIRECTORIES. The main section is titled "CAMPUS MAP" and includes a sidebar with links to BUILDINGS, BUILDING TYPES, DEPARTMENTS, MISCELLANEOUS, EXTERNAL SOURCES, STREET VIEW, and LIVE O.U.T. MAPS & SCHEDULE. The map itself is a satellite view of the campus, with a pop-up window for the Grove Pavilion at 1639 University Circle, identified as a Cultural building. The pop-up also includes a thumbnail image of the building and links for Building Permalink and Report a Problem. The map interface includes standard controls like zoom in/out, a compass, and map style options (Map, Satellite, Terrain). A scale bar at the bottom indicates 200 feet and 50 meters. The footer mentions the map is powered by Google and includes copyright information for 2012.

General Education Core Curriculum

Bachelor of Arts (B.A.)

B.A. Required Curriculum • Listed in the table below are the general education courses that the college requires for all B.A. degree programs. Details of the requirements are described following the table. This B.A. required curriculum includes all university core courses. CLEP and/or AP credit can be used toward fulfilling these requirements. Students should note that some majors and minors require specific courses within the following categories.

B.A. Required Curriculum	Semester Hours
English composition	6
English literature survey	6
Modern or ancient language	6 to 12
Science (from two different departments)	9 to 11
History	6
Mathematics	3
Social sciences	6
Additional humanities	3
Fine or performing arts	3

ENGLISH. The requirement consists of 6 hours of English composition and 6 hours from a menu of 200-level literature survey courses. The standard composition sequence consists of Engl 101 and either Engl 102 or Liberal Arts (Liba) 102. The composition courses are not sequential. However, Liba 102 is reserved exclusively for first-year students. The literature survey courses that satisfy this requirement are Engl 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, and 226. Engl 250 does not satisfy this requirement. Engl courses at the 300-, 400-, or 500-level may not be used to satisfy this requirement.

MODERN OR ANCIENT LANGUAGE. The university offers courses in Ancient Greek, Arabic, Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Latin, Portuguese, Russian, and Spanish. Students must complete 6 hours at the 200

The screenshot shows the PBS NewsHour Ad Libs 2012 website. At the top, there's a banner with a blue oval containing a gold star and the text "AD LIBS 2012". Below this, the PBS NewsHour logo is visible. The main content area features a large headline "MAKE YOUR OWN CAMPAIGN ADS" in bold blue letters. To the left of the headline is a circular button that says "VOTE FOR YOU IN 2012". Below the headline, there's a red button that says "START CAMPAIGNING, ROBBY!" with a play icon. A paragraph of text follows: "Do you know how political campaign ads work? How they're built? What they're meant to tell you? Most political ads follow a rigid set of guidelines and fall into one of a few categories. We've put together a few samples for you to customize with your information and imagination. It's fun, it's fast, and you'll never watch campaign ads the same way again!". At the bottom, there's a row of ten gold stars, and below that, three links: "CREDITS", "REPORT A BUG", and "CONTRIBUTE".
