

IJP GENERAL INFORMATION AND SUBSCRIPTION GUIDELINES

IJP - International Journal of Pavements encompasses the following subject areas: accelerated pavement testing; modern practices to design, maintain, and rehabilitate asphalt and concrete pavements; low volume roads; new stabilization and paving technologies; nondestructive evaluation; material testing and characterization; life-cycle analysis and pavement management; and innovative applications of advanced computer modeling and remote sensing technologies. This will be an excellent worldwide forum to reach out to a large number of industry professionals, educators, researchers, transportation engineers, and agency officials involved in education, research, building, and preserving transportation infrastructure.

Manuscript submission: Follow the detailed Author's guidelines for preparing and submitting the manuscript in English. Instructions for authors and additional information for using SI units and preparing the manuscript in English are available from the editor and web page. All paper manuscripts including figures and tables should be sent to the editor in electronic form, either by e-mail, as an attached Word2000 document file. All papers will be peer reviewed and the primary corresponding author will be notified if the manuscript is accepted for publication. After approval of an accepted manuscript, two (2) copies of the manuscript and an electronic Word2000 file version of the manuscript should be sent to the editor's address given at the end. The reviewers will be selected from the IJP International Editorial Board and other invited reviewers who are distinguished and well known experts in pavement and related transportation engineering fields. Authors submitting manuscripts for publication warrant that the manuscript is the original work of the authors and has not been published, the work does not violate any existing copyright laws, and the authors will indemnify the IJP publishers and editor against any breach of such warranties. Authors must submit a signed paper manuscript offer form.

The IJP publication policy does not endorse or allow the use of commercial statements and commercial names for promotional purposes. The editor and publisher reserve the right to charge for excessive editing of a final manuscript.
